Can't Reach Agreement, Peking Says

Ideological Talks Between China, Russia Seen Near End

By PRESTON GROVER
MOSCOW AP) — The deadlocked Soviet-Chinese unity talks, labeled a flop by Peking, are expected to end before Monday, clearing the way for new East-West efforts to reach a nuclear test ban.

Red China broke the week-long official silence surrounding the ideological peace talks, Friday, acknowledging "with hearts" that attempts to heal the widening breach between Communism's giants have failed.

Then, in an apparent attempt to avoid charges of rupturing the talks, Peking held the door open for further negotiations at another time.

"We want unity, not a split," the official Peking People's Daily said in an editorial broadcast by the New China News Agency, monitored in Tokyo. It added, "The present situation is very grave."

Peking said it had hoped relations with Moscow would be eased by the talks "but we now have to point out with heavy hearts that events have gone contrary to our hopes."

Soviet informants predicted the meetings would end in two or three days. Good sources indicated the two sides did not even agree on a basis to open the negotiations.

The admitted failure in the at-Khrushchev's peaceful coexistence line with Peking's militant stand came two days before the scheduled opening of new East-West nuclear test ban talks.

U.S., British and Soviet test ban negotiators will meet Monday. Western circles here viewed prospects of an accord on the guarded optimism.

Although conceding that the current Soviet-Chinese meetings are doomed to failure, Peking expressed hope that future sessions would be more fruitful.

At the same time the editorial gave vent to feelings of outrage. "Since the start of the Chinese-Soviet talks, the Central Committee of the Soviet Union has not ceased its public attack on, the Communist party of China," Peking said.

A brief meeting was held Friday following a day's recess in the talks.

New Moves Planned By Negroes

CAMBRIDGE, Md. AP) — A fragile peace enforced by National Guardsmen with fixed bayonets settled on this racially scarred community today as Negro leaders planned the next move in their integration campaign.

Militia law — and 400 guardsmen backing it up — were reimposed after six persons were wounded Thursday night and early Friday in the second major outbreak of shootings here in a month.

Gov. J. Millard Tawes, turning aside integrationist requests for a special session of the legislature to cope with racial problems, but acknowledging the inability of local police to keep the Cambridge powderkeg from exploding, ordered the guard back into town after a four-day absence.

It had been withdrawn last Monday after a 25-day stay resulting from a series of shootings and store burnings.

There was no violence Friday night as the guard clamped on a series of restrictions just short of martial law, which is forbidden by the state constitution.

Businesses closed at 7 p.m. By 10 p.m. — an hour after the guard-imposed curfew — streets were deserted.

Liquor, beer and wine sales were suspended in the city and surrounding Dorchester County.

Main approaches to the town were sealed off. Only persons with urgent business were allowed to enter.

Automobiles were subjected to search for firearms at checkpoints.

The ban on demonstrations applied to whites as well as Negroes.

In a test of the ban Friday night, peace-keepers prevailed.

About 250 Negroes and some white sympathizers began a march on the courthouse. Be-against segregated schools and public accommodations they had a new grievance—the refusal of the state court of appeals a few hours earlier to release two 15-year-old demonstrators sentenced to reformatories as juvenile delinquents.

Such marches had become a daily routine before the June violence and had been resumed last Monday. Tension had mounted since then. White crowds gathering to watch the demonstrators or heckle them had grown larger daily. About 1,000 were there before Thursday night's outbreak.

Friday night, before the marchers had covered one of the seven blocks along the parade route from their church meeting place in the Negro section to the courthouse, they were halted dramatically.

Committee Sets Full Work Week

Rail Study Group Moves Into Action

WASHINGTON AP) — President Kennedy's blue ribbon rails panel has drawn up a busy work schedule for next week amid increasing signs that legislation is the only way to avert a nationwide strike.

The six-man committee, which spent Thursday and Friday getting organized, gave no definite sign today that any of its individual members may step in as mediator in another try at ironing out the four-year-old dispute over new work rules.

The members were not selected for a mediation function, the chairman, Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz, has pointed out.

The function is primarily fact-finding to help the President draw up legislation to be recommended to Congress by July 22, Wirtz has emphasized.

A government official made it clear that with the carriers and the five operating unions as adamant as they are, there seems to be little hope for any settlement other than through legislation.

The committee will pursue its task under the strike truce arranged by President Kennedy Wednesday. Under that agreement the carriers have postponed until July 29 putting into effect new work rules designed to eliminate gradually upwards of 60,000 jobs and the unions have said they will delay strike action until that date.

The committee has taken a weekend break, leaving half-dozen Labor and Commerce Department specialists to iron out operational procedures.

The panel will resume sessions Monday with representatives of the carriers and the unions summed for quizzing on any issues that may arise.

Tuesday, a similar session will be held—first with all concerned taking part, then the committee meeting with each side separately.

Jury 'Hung' In Hanover Tavern Crash

LISBON — A common pleas court jury of six men and six women late Friday reported to Common Pleas Judge Joel H. Sharp, after deliberating over five hours, that they were deadlocked and unable to reach a verdict in the second degree manslaughter trial of Wayne Hillier, 33, of Hanover.

Hillier had been indicted in connection with the traffic death of Earl McIntosh, a patron in the Midway Tavern, which was struck by the Hillier car around 12:30 a.m. Jan. 13, 1962, in Hanover.

The four-day trial began Monday, with 15 witnesses being heard for both the state and the defense.

Judge Sharp charged the jury Friday morning and they received the case about 11 a.m. They were excused for lunch from noon till 1 p.m. and then returned.

They came back at 3:30 p.m. and asked Judge Sharp to reread his charge on speeding and reckless operation, two of the charges the

Birns Free On $50,000 Bond

After Being Quizzed In Gold's Murder

CLEVELAND (AP) — Alex Shondor) Birns was free on $50,000 bond today after spending less than a day and a half in jail for questioning in the slaying of investment promoter Mervyn L. Gold.

A decision was expected in Common Pleas Criminal Court today by Judge William K. Thomas as to whether to reduce the amount of Birns' bond. The bond was set by Cuyahoga County Coroner Samuel Gerber to assure Birns' presence at an inquest into Gold's death, scheduled for next Wednesday.

Birns, 58, was released late Friday after the second of his two court appearances. In the morning session he won his freedom on a writ of habeas corpus.

In the afternoon session, Birns' lawyer sought to have the bond reduced to personal bond, involv-

March On City Hall Is 'For the Dogs'

TROY, Ohio (AP)—A march on City Hall here Monday night is planned by a group of Troy citizens opposing what it calls "unfair dog legislation."

The city council is to consider a proposed ordinance, originated by another citizen's group, requiring that all dogs be kept on a leash or confined to the premises of its owner. A public hearing is scheduled on the proposed ordinance.

An advertisement in the Troy Daily News asks all those who are opposed to the regulations meet at the public library Monday evening to form for a march to City Hall.

Officials To Probe Mine Again

Search Continues For Missing Boys

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Officials planned one final probe into an old abandoned mine today in the search for three boys missing since Thursday.

They announced their decision after a six-man rescue team emerged from the mine earlier today and reported they had discovered no clues that would help them determine whether the teenagers are in the suburban Castle Shannon mine.

Everett Turner, a U.S. Bureau of Mines inspector, said exploration into the last area should take about eight hours. Once this is accomplished, he said, officials will have been satisfied that the mine was searched thoroughly.

"Then we'll have to say they're not in there," he added.

Turner said a large pressure fan was to be used to clear deadly black damp gas from the area. The gas forced workers out of the mine for a while Friday night.

However, they resumed the search after fans cleared the air. After about two hours, they quit for the night.

Only theories exist as to the whereabouts of the boys—Robert Abbot, 15, and Danny O'Kain and

Mountaineers Force Camp To Shut Down

ROSMAN, N.C. AP) — Mountaineers enraged by reports of free love, nudity and integration have used flame and gun on Summerlane, and put the summer camp out of business in the Blue Ridge mountains near here.

The 70 campers, mostly teenage boys and girls, left by car and bus Friday under police escort after the gymnasium was burned, the window of a camp bus shot out, and gunfire and blows were exchanged Thursday night and early Friday.

No one was wounded or seriously injured. Sheriff C. R. McCall said he was told the camp was being moved to an unannounced destination in New Jersey.

Some residents of this western North Carolina area, who would not be identified, said they were outraged at what they heard were free love practices and nudity among the campers, and the admission of Negroes.

"All this added together just didn't set too well with the local people. "We're mostly Baptists and pretty serious about it," the sheriff said.

However, camp members said only white persons were enrolled. They described Summerlane as nothing more than a summer place where members could relax, enjoy the solitude of the mountains, swim and participate in athletics.

Its literature described Summerlane as based on the principles of Summerhill, a progressive school in England.

Sheriff McCall said the mountain

Good-sized crowds are expected Sunday at Leetonia and Lisbon where "The General", Confederate locomotive which figured importantly in the Civil War, will be on public view.

The stopovers here are part of a district tour of the locomotive which was stolen in Georgia by Union raiders in 1862 in an attempt to cut Confederate supply lines.

Under its own power, the well-preserved engine will arrive on the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks at Leetonia at 8:40 p.m. for a 40-minute period of public inspection. The locomotive and museum will be delivered then to the Erie-Lackawanna tracks for a run backwards to Lisbon where the public may view the vehicles from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The locomotive is scheduled to arrive back in Leetonia about 6 p.m. where it will remain for public inspection until it leaves for its next stop in Conway, Pa., via the Pennsylvania Railroad. Departure time has not been announced.

Leetonia Band to Play It was learned today the Leetonia High School band will play from 8:30 a.m., 10 minutes before the scheduled arrival of "The General", until 9:30 a.m. In the absence of Director Karl Meinhardt, who has resigned to go to Geneva, the aggregation will be directed by Miss Miriam Davis, Leetonia High School and Bald-

Confederate General Surrendered In County July 26—100 Years Ago

Map Traces Route of Morgan's Raid

This map, from "Echoes," a publication of the Ohio Historical Society, traces the route of Confederate cavalry leader John Hunt Morgan in his raid through Ohio in July, 1863.

On Monday, July 13, Morgan appeared at Harrison (1) and passed through Glendale (2) that night.

At dawn, Tuesday, July 14, near Camp Dennison, the raiders burned a wagon train, fought a skirmish and, pursued by Brig. Gen. Hobson and Maj. Gen. Judah, galloped off. At 4 o'clock that afternoon Morgan had gone through Batavia (9) and was in Williamsburg (4).

MORGAN THEN DIVIDED his force, sending his brother, Col. Richard Morgan, south through Georgetown (5) while he angled across Brown County through Mt. Orab (6) and Sardinia (7) and on into Winchester (8). Richard hit Ripley (9) and West Union (10). They converged at Locust Grove (11) on Wednesday, July 15.

Terrifying towns, stealing horses and merchandise, ripping up railroad tracks, and wrecking depots, Morgan and his men reached the Scioto River on Thursday, July 16, where Jasper (12) and Piketon (13) were ransacked. By riding 45 miles at night, Morgan entered Jackson (14) Friday, July 17, spent several hours there, looted the town, and dashed on to Vinton (15) to spend the night.

A detachment was sent to Wilkesville (17) while he engaged in a clash with militia near Berlin (16). But by 1 p.m. Saturday, July 18, he was at Chester (18). Original plans were to cross the Ohio River at Portland (19) and escape into West Virginia. However, it was there on Sunday, July 19, that the Judah-Hobson forces caught up with him, killing 120 raiders and capturing 700 more.

MORGAN ESCAPED with 1,200 men and rode north to the vicinity of Reedsville (20) where they again tried to cross the river. Driven back, they sought refuge on Monday night, July 20, at Valley Furnace (21). Now less than 900 in number, they fought at Hockinsport (22) and Cheshire (23). All day Tuesday they rode, and Tuesday night, July 21, passed through Eagle Furnace (24) and Vinton Station (25).

At 1 o'clock Wednesday morning, July 22, the men skirted Zaleski (26) and by sunup were between New Plymouth (27) and Mt. Pleasant (28). They pushed on through Nelsonville (29) and New Straitsville (30) to Taylorville (31) on the Muskingum River. With men and horses falling from exhaustion, they were met by volunteer infantry at Eaglesport (32).

By crossing the Muskingum early July 23, they escaped only to run into militia near Blue Rock (33) and in Cumberland (34). By Friday morning, July 24, they were at Campbell Station (35). About 10 o'clock that morning they fought off troops at Old Washington (36) and in another six hours were at Hendrysburg (37) from where Morgan doubled back toward Antrim (38) for a few hours rest.

BY NIGHT THEY were headed east toward Harrisville (39) but were met by militia at New Athens (40). Through Smithfield (41), New Alexandria (42), Wintersville (43), and on to Richmond (44) they rode. Saturday night, July 25, the invaders were past East Springfield (45) at Berg-holz (46) where they slept.

Early Sunday morning, July 26, Morgan fled north through Monroeville (47) to Salineville (48) where he was overtaken. Again Morgan escaped but six hours later near West Point (49) in Columbiana County, he finally surrendered.

CHANGING SCENE. Two Columbiana landmarks, the old frame building housing the Crawford plumbing and heating store, and a brick apartment house on the square, crumble before a wrecking crew.

Columbiana Landmarks Fall

Familiar Buildings On Square Yield To Progress

By GLENN SCHOTTEN

COLUMBIANA — The face of the village square is changing after many decades. Souvenir seekers are on hand to get a door knob or some other token of the dear past as the historic northeast corner yields to progress.

Although many unofficial reports of objection to the destruction of the frame building and the old, red apartment house were rumored, few voices were publicly and officially raised to the demolition to make way for a used car lot.

Heavy equipment of the Ruth Excavating Co., Harold Holloway company, is at work turning to shambles, first the frame building, most recently home of the Crawford Equipment Co., and next the stone apartment building.

Fred Koch, who has the Ford auto agency, will blacktop the site for his used car lot next spring.

$10,000 Damage Suit Filed After Mishap

LISBON — A suit for $10,000 for damages and costs allegedly stemming from a truck crashing into his home was filed in court Friday by Robert and Sally Miller, 953 E. 5th St., Salem.

Clyde A. Parrish and Rufus Harris of Cleveland and the Arrow Trucking Inc., Cincinnati, are named the defendants in the suit.

The Millers claim the truck which went through the front of their home damaged clothing and property and due to this accident they had to find a house which cost them $20 a month more than where they had been living at 1474 S. Lincoln Ave., Salem.

The accident happened Jan. 8 when a truck-trailer going north ran off the right side of the road into the house of Millers.

dust-covered facts from out of Columbiana's past. Miss Leila Beard, who probably knows more about the village's history than any other living person, said George Faust in 1820 built a 1 1/2 cabin where the frame building stood.

Joseph Wallace, who came here from Hanover, bought the building in 1843. The following year his smoke house caught fire, setting off one of the first holocausts in Columbiana's history. The conflagration consumed the entire block, No. 21 of the original town plat.

Wallace built the present frame building, which stood until this week, in 1845 as a grocery store. One of the village's most enterprising entrepreneurs, Wallace did a thriving business.

IN 1858 THE building became headquarters for the "Gospel Visitor," a religious pamphlet, edited by Rev. Henry Kurtz and appearing in both German and English. The organ was destined to become the official publication of the Church of the Brethren in the United States. The magazine headquarters was transferred to a new location in 1866.

About the turn of the century, the "Columbiana Ledger" moved its operations into the structure and remained there until the new plant was built.

Less is known about the red brick building than the frame structure. It was occupied at one time by Dr. Harry Bookwalter, father of Dr. H. Lee Bookwalter, and another physician, Dr. William E. McCord. In recent years the building has been a two-family dwelling.

BLOCK 21 on which the two structures were erected, was part of the original plat drawn up by Joshua Dixon, who founded Columbiana in 1805. Dixon moved here in 1802 with his wife and 11 children and one of his sons, the village's first postmaster, lived in a log cabin on the site of the brick building.

IMITATION ADULTS

High comedy! They may not be actresses, but they're accomplished mimics.

Yet as I eavesdrop on their little game of pretending — well, as a mother, I'm just a bit frightened. How readily they pick up our characteristic poses and attitudes . . . always exaggerating to an extent . . . trying to be more like us than we are ourselves!

Then I remember the day John and I made that thoughtful decision to join the Church and raise our Children in a Christian home. What a difference that decision has made in our lives. And what a difference it is making in our children's lives.

There's no harm in youngsters imitating adults . . . so long as the adults they imitate are worth imitating!

Salem Welcomes the A&P

It was a long time in coming but yesterday's announcement by the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. was the first formal disclosure of what the nationally-known food concern was going to build on the 65-acre site it purchased here a year ago.

The company's statement and the sound of heavy earth-moving equipment at the site bordering the main Pennsylvania Railroad line south of town left little doubt in the minds of Salem citizens that a meat and perishable food processing plant would be constructed here.

THE REFRIGERATED WAREHOUSE will represent a company investment of $3 million in a modern facility that will better serve A&P's thousands of stores in its central division which cover parts of six states. Company officials, who said they would prefer to be extremely conservative in their predictions, estimated that employment will be provided for 150 men and women when the plant is opened, indicating that the employment figure in all probability would be greater. Everyone in Salem hopes so.

The Pennsylvania Railroad, which provided Salem Chamber of Commerce officials with the original tip nearly two years ago that a major food chain was looking for an industrial site in this part of eastern Ohio, will install a special siding so that refrigerated trains from as far away as Omaha, Neb., St. Louis, Mo., and Chicago can rush shipments to the local plant for processing. Thus, the Salem installation will be one of A&P's biggest distribution points.

And, with the plant itself covering three to four acres, not counting land needed for rail siding and trucks, sufficient acreage will remain for any future expansion that A&P might consider, like a bakery that had been discussed at one time.

And, as we pointed out in an earlier editorial in The News, the food chain's decision to locate in Salem resulted from a magnificent sales job and a lot of good, hard work by Arch Bricker, president of the Salem Area Industrial Development Corporation; Victor Ballenger, executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and many other dedicated civic leaders and city officials who seek no personal glory in their never-ceasing effort to serve their home town and to help it grow.

WE THINK IT NOTABLE that both the A&P and local officers were complimentary of each other in the months of negotiations and the ironing out of a multitude of major and minutely-technical details before the firm's main office gave the "go ahead" signal for work to commence.

It is important to point out, too, the cooperation of Columbiana County commissioners and County Engineer Charles Snyder and providing a roadway to the plant site and City Council's willingness to extend water and sewage lines to the railroad right-of-way.

We are sure that A&P's decision to build was strengthened by the outstanding demonstration of community effort which can result in other similar accomplishments as Salem continues to grow and prosper in many ways.

Just Like the Generals

Reports of deep-seated internal differences in the Democratic and Republican parties will be coming off the presses and teleprompters at a steady clip for the next year.

All will have the same theme. It will be a miracle if the parties can keep order long enough to nominate a candidate.

There is no possibility of a hatchet-burying except in the process of carrying out an execution.

The party's internal differences are irreconcilable.

BUT THE FACT is the differences always were irreconcilable. There never has been close party unity. Political harmony has never been more than a wish and an illusion.

Dissension begins at the lowest level and runs through the party organization to the highest level.

The bitterest quarrels always are inside parties, far exceeding the bitterness of the issues that lie between parties.

But if all this is so, what holds a political party together? What has enabled the Democratic party, scarcely more than a coalition of dissimilar factions in the North and South, to carry the country consistently since 1932?

And what makes Republicans hopeful of smoothing over their differences in time for a 1964 effort that might prove successful?

THE ANSWER is simple.

Perhaps it is too simple for those looking for something complex.

A political party is like a baseball club with a common interest in winning.

This is what has held the Democratic coalition together since 1932.

It is what holds the divergent elements of the Republican party together.

There is no imperative need for intra-party harmony. It would be nice if it existed, but it never did exist.

Politicians fight among themselves, just like generals. But as long as generals win wars and politicians win elections, no one worries about interior disagreements.

Job For Chester Bowles

Chester Bowles is going back to India and John Kenneth Galbreath is coming home.

The exchange of ambassadors is interesting. This will be Mr. Bowles' second tour of duty, and he is returning to India at the height of a tough problem of U.S. help for a government-owned and operated steel mill at Bokaro.

Indian confidence that the deal for this socialist enterprise was sewed up has been shaken recently. Though there seems to be no prospect of whittling down U.S. taxpayer aid to India, which is running at the rate of close to three quarters of a billion dollars a year, there might be some way to assure U.S. taxpayers that for all the billions they have advanced there is a fighting chance to get something in return besides different statements about "neutrality" in the cold war.

INDIA is a charter member of the Billion Dollar Club among foreign aid recipients. There are 22 members, ranging from $9.4 billion France down to $1.1 billion Norway.

Other members besides India are United Kingdom, Italy, Korea, West Germany, Nationalist China, Turkey, Japan, Greece, the Netherlands, Vietnam, Yugoslavia, Belgium-Luxembourg, Brazil, Pakistan, the Philippines, Spain, Indochina, Iran and Austria.

Foreign aid as a whole has cost the United States more than $120 billion since the end of World War II, according to U.S. Rep. Otto Passman, D-La. About $100 billion, Rep. Passman estimates, has gone into 111 foreign nations and entities. Rep. Passman as chairman of the House of Representatives subcommittee that deal with foreign aid appropriations has carried on a relentless campaign to curtail foreign aid spending.

HIS FAVORITE arguing point is that no other nation in the world is giving away its wealth. He points to the shrinking gold reserve — down from $23 billion to $16 billion in the last 10 years — as one of the long-term consequences of the program.

Don't try to keep up with the neighbors unless you are sure you can keep up with the payments.

Resodding

By Truman Twill

One of the office charmers returned from her vacation today with her hair dyed — off-white. Everybody commented favorably on the transformation. My comment goes deeper.

I want equal rights. It was built into my genes to start losing hair before I was 20. Hereditary baldness is a pain in the scalp for millions of men.

Not to knock people who say otherwise but only to confess skepticism. It's doubtful if anything can be done to save men from baldness hereditary. The evil day can be caught up to them.

Nearly every glamor boy in the entertainment is compelled to wear a hair piece for public appearances. Even when these photogenic dolls have enough fur on their noggins for ordinary purposes, they need help to fool the camera.

No one has any objection to this. Women sigh and palpitate just as if their cinematic lover boys were haired over like chimps. Their fans would feel let down if they appeared in public without scalp dolls. It would show disregard for their devotees.

SO, THAT'S how it is with actor fellows. But not for us nonactor fellows.

When we shed, we're shunned.

They make jokes about us and never let us forget how we look.

If we fight back with a touch of resodding, they break up in laughter and make us feel as if we had been watering the liquor or practicing some equally sleazy deceptions.

Suppose I came back from my vacation with a mop of distinguished iron-gray hair. Nothing sets off a man like iron-gray hair, provided there's plenty of it, preferably with a tendency to be wavy.

There wouldn't be a tactful moment. Everybody on the place would feel it and tug at it to see if it was on tight. They'd make me take it off and show them how it worked.

When the novelty had worn off, they still would have the thing on their minds. They'd nod in my direction when talking to strangers and it would be obvious they were passing along the word that "ole wobble-head over there, he is fooling the public with false hair, har, har."

That is how it would be.

I HAVE BEEN investigating overhead on the overhead. For $500, I could be transformed into a man of distinction. This would include one on the job, one going and one coming, as they said in WPA days.

People would want to know who the fellow is with the beautiful iron grey hair.

But it would work only if I could make a fresh start among strangers. If I tried it with the people who know me, they'd kid me out of my scalp.

Public Opinion Has Effect On Dictatorships

By DAVID LAWRENCE

As the world observes from time to time Nikita Khrushchev's erratic and abrupt changes in policy, there is one factor that rarely gets the emphasis that it deserves. It's the influence of public opinion inside a dictatorship country, even when the press and radio are strictly controlled by the government. It might be said of dictators, as it has been said of kings, "uneasy lies the head that wears a crown. Joseph Stalin, in a talk at Moscow with Harry Hopkins, special emissary of the Roosevelt administration, argued against the termination of lend-lease by the United States and said it could affect adversely the public opinion inside the Soviet Union. When Mr. Hopkins smiled, the dictator retorted: "Oh, yes, we have our public opinion, too."

Because the ultimate triumph of popular opinion and the overthrow of dictatorships are not always immediately discernible on the horizon, they are too often brushed aside as not only improbably but impossible. That's why particular significance attaches to the informal and impromptu remarks made by former President Dwight Eisenhower on Wednesday during a panel discussion with European leaders on a CBS television program transmitted by the telstar system simultaneously from Europe and America.

MR. EISENHOWER was asked by Walter Cronkite, moderator of the program, to assess the seriousness and perhaps the duration of the ideological battle between Moscow and Peking. Mr. Eisenhower replied:

"Well, there's been one comforting thing about the history of dictatorships. The people that are power hungry begin to fall out among themselves. So here, I think, we have one example of — we have a Communist power becoming sort of polarized. It's now centered both in Peking and in the Kremlin, and, naturally, jealousies develop."

"If these jealousies can extend not only into the military and political world but also into the economic, then we would hope that his life is not only noticeable and, you might say, important, but it will grow."

"But, along with this development, between these two Communist giants, we've got to remember this: There are a number of people that are held in subjugation in the world that are themselves unhappy about these things. It isn't the people themselves that are Communists and are embracing Communist doctrines, but you go over — I was in Czechoslovakia, for example, just before the take over in that country. Well, there was no question about the dedication of the mass of the people to freedom."

"This holds, I think, for all the Eastern (European) nations. They really want to be free and to pursue their own independent courses. Well, they are now held down by Communist military power, and that will continue for some time because, certainly, we're not going to start an aggressive war to break up this thing."

"But within Communist areas themselves, there is constantly an enlightenment that must go along with the scientific development that we see so marked in the Communist nations today. There's bound to become a better understanding of freedom and what it means in West Germany, as opposed to East Germany, in the Western nations as opposed to the Iron Curtain countries."

"You just cannot bring into a whole population a knowledge and practice of great and sophisticated scientific techniques without bringing in also an information, an understanding, that's now denied them."

"So, I think that, while sometimes it may become very disappointing that time has to be depended upon, the whole history of dictatorships is that sooner or later they do destroy themselves."

"Now, in the meantime, I think we ought to encourage every kind of dissension, both internal and as between the Chinese and the Russians, and do everything we can to show the power and the determination of the free nations to be dedicated to those basic principles of human dignity and freedom and liberty that are truly the unifying influences among these democratic and self-governing nations."

MR. EISENHOWER'S analysis is significant in itself because he has reached his conclusions after eight years in the White House, where he could make an intimate study of the Soviet system based on intelligence reports, week after week, and on the information that comes to our government regularly from the governments in Western Europe which are close to the Iron Curtain countries.

Mr. Eisenhower today is not, of course, subject to the inhibitions in public discussion that restrain a chief executive in office. President Kennedy could not openly say what Mr. Eisenhower did. Yet it must be inferred that again and again the administration here has had in the back of its mind the possibility that, as a result of steady pressures on the Moscow government, the internal situation in the Soviet Union would come to a head.

THE HIGH COST of armaments weighs heavily on the Soviet dictatorship, since many benefits are denied the Soviet people because their money is being spent to carry on the arms race.

A government that controls the economy, moreover, utilizes all sorts of restrictions that impair the individual initiative and freedom of the citizens.

The Eisenhower analysis will not make good reading in Moscow, but it gives a ray of hope to those in America who believe that ultimately the Communist dictatorship will go the way of the tyrannical autocracy of the czars in Russia.

'Who'd You Ever Lick?'

Because It's Right ...

Few Presidential Cabinet members face as many crises per day as the secretary of labor. So Victor Riesel asked Willard Wirtz what preoccupied him most these days. His reply follows.

By W. WILLARD WIRTZ
Secretary of Labor

In the struggle for equality now at the forefront of our national life, a few basic areas of long-established prejudice and discrimination are dominant.

Every worker, regardless of his race, would like to have the knowledge that his children's educational opportunities are adequate enough to hold out the promise, one day, of a fuller social and economic life.

He would like to be able to present himself to any personnel office and be judged on the basis of his individual merit.

At present, these basic rights are too often denied to Negro workers.

Of these considerations, the last may very well be the most important and yet the least understood by most Americans. The Negroes place in our national employment picture is not merely an unpleasant one to contemplate. It is appalling.

STATISTICS in this instance are at best an inadequate expression of what is essentially a human condition. Nevertheless, they reveal with marked clarity the story of a job squeeze for the American Negro which he has every right to regard and resent as totally intolerable.

Among family breadwinners in this country, the unemployment rate for non-whites is 9 per cent; 3 per cent for whites.

The unemployment rate for white youngsters age 14 to 19 is 12 per cent; for non-whites, it soars to 24 per cent.

Non-whites in this country represent 11 per cent of the total labor force. Yet, one out of every four workers who have been out of work a half-year or longer are non-white.

The rate of non-white participation in involuntary part-time work — necessitated by an absence of full-time opportunities — is more than triple that of whites.

LITTLE LIZ

The narrow roads where two cars could barely pass without colliding have been replaced by wide ones where five or six can collide at once.

Contrary to what may be popular belief, things have not been getting any better. In 1947, the non-white unemployment rate was 64 per cent higher than the white's; in 1952, it was 92 per cent higher; in 1957, it was 105 per cent higher. Last year, 1962, it stood at 124 per cent higher.

ANOTHER DIMENSION of the problem relates to the kind of work the nations employed Negroes perform.

Today, some 47 per cent of white workers with jobs hold white-collar positions; as opposed to a corresponding figure of 17 per cent for non-whites. Again, the proportion of Negro workers employed as unskilled laborers is fully 3 1/2 times greater than that of white workers.

The Negro's work plight is most clearly underlined in the professions. Only about one-half percent of all our professional engineers are non-whites.

Moreover, an across-the-board survey of 19 standard professional occupations on which the Department of Labor maintains data reveals that in none of these does non-white participation exceed 3 per cent.

These statistics reflect the conditions which most concern the American Negro 100 years after his emancipation. They ought to equally disturb anyone whose experience it has been to share fully in all the opportunities our nation offers.

There are, however, readily apparent and specific steps to be taken now. The federal government, for its part, has already embarked upon three major action programs which show great promise of real progress in this field.

Under the Manpower Development and Training Act of 1962, some 50,000 unemployed or underemployed workers have been approved for job training or retraining thus far, and more than 20 per cent of them are Negroes.

DIRECT FEDERAL hiring of non-whites has been greatly accelerated, and federal influence has been brought to bear on the hiring policies of firms performing work under government contract.

The Department of Labor will no longer certify apprenticeship training programs in which there is any evidence of discrimination on the part of labor, management or both.

In view of the magnitude of the problem, however, these federal actions represent what is at best a severely limited path toward solutions. A broadening of that path would involve rapid progress in three essential areas.

To begin with, it would be a hollow victory indeed if we were to get the "Whites Only" signs down, only to find the "No Vacancies" signs right behind them.

In a word, more jobs are required for whites and Negroes alike. It is toward this goal that the government's programs in the fields of accelerated public works, investment incentives and other economic and manpower measures have been directed.

It's also toward this goal that the President's vastly important tax proposals — now before the Congress — are directed.

A SECOND AREA would relate to the lesser qualifications long associated with the traditional forms of Negro employment. It is a disheartening fact that of today's adults in our country, almost half of our non-whites did not even complete a grade school education. Only 20 per cent of white adults shared this failure.

It's for this reason that President Kennedy devoted so much of his attention in the June 19 civil rights message to Congress to the basic matters of training and education.

Finally, we must address ourselves as a people to the harsh, ugly fact of racial discrimination in our nations employment pattern.

The President has recommended to the Congress appropriate legislation to eliminate discrimination in government employment and in work performed for the government. The provisions of the Civil Rights Act constitute a firm commitment to guarantee equality, and I hope the Congress will act promptly to pass it.

Measures such as these, coupled with similar actions at the state and local levels and a new American outlook toward a clearly untenable situation, could bring rapidly to our Negro population the economic opportunity of which it is today deprived.

As President Kennedy has put it, "Justice requires us to insure the blessings of liberty for all Americans and their posterity — not merely for reasons of economic efficiency, world diplomacy and domestic tranquility — but, above all, because it's right."

Ann Landers

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: What can I say to a good wife and mother who NEVER reads a newspaper because she insists she doesn't have the time? The Red Chinese could be on our porch and she wouldn't know it. We have four children under 10 years of age, a seven room house, two dogs and a garden. She is busy, Ann, and I would be the last person in the world to deny it, but all the same it's appalling that this woman can't somehow manage to devote 15 minutes of her day to reading a newspaper.

I made the mistake of bringing up Ethel Kennedy yesterday and she almost took my head off. Please give me another approach. There must be a logical answer that I can give her but I don't know it. Help! Help! —BRICK WALL.

Dear Brick: Everyone has equal time — no more, no less. Even the Kennedy's get only 24 hours a day.

People who insist they can't find time to do this or that should be reminded that it's the division of time — and not a shortage — which determines the cliché is accurate. "If you want something done, ask a busy person. He'll do it."

Victim of Gyp? Dear Ann: Six weeks ago I sent for some merchandise which was advertised in a reputable national magazine.

I received a package with a letter attached saying that no longer had the merchandise I had sent for but that they were sending a substitute of equal value and they were sure I'd be pleased. Well it was not of equal value, it was plain junk — and I was not pleased. I mailed it back to them and attached a note saying if they could not send me what they had advertised in the magazine to please return my check for $5.

Four weeks have passed and I have heard nothing. How do I go about getting my money back? I know they are not going to get rich on my $5 but if they can pull this on several thousand suckers every month it sure beats working. Thanks for your help — DUMB CLUCK.

Dear Cluck: Write a letter to your postmaster and explain in detail what happened. The Post Office Department will investigate the outfit. If they are shady operators they'll soon be out of business (and you just may get your $5 back.)

Light for 'Dim Hopes'

Dear Ann: Please pass this word on to "Dim Hopes," the poor kid who was getting headaches trying to study in the kitchen under a 60 watt bulb. At today's average rate of 3c per kilowatt hour, the added cost of burning a 100 watt bulb over that of a 60-watt would be about 1/4 of a cent per hour, or 80 hours for the price of a candy bar. This is hardly worth making a fuss about.

And I'll bet that 60 watt bulb is in a ceiling fixture when it ought to be in a portable lamp beside her bed or on her desk. This means she is getting at the reading level only 3 or 4 per cent of the light of the bulb. If it were properly placed she'd have no problem. — A.M.P. LIGHTING SPECIALIST FOR GE.

Dear A.M.P.: Thanks for your explanation. I received many letters from lighting specialists (some called themselves engineers) but yours was the easiest to understand. I hope this will help the young lady see the light.

Suit Filed In Wellsville Police Case

LISBON — A mandamus action to force the mayor and service-safety director of Wellsville to appoint a patrolman to the Wellsville police department was filed Friday afternoon by Joseph A. Heiney of Wellsville.

The date for the hearing has been set for Aug. 13 at 9 a.m. in common pleas court. The defendants are William Daugherty and Fred Baldasare, mayor and service-safety director, respectively. Heiney, in his petition, claims that City Council in 1951 set up a police department in Wellsville with chief and six patrolmen. On Dec. 17, 1957, Council established a position of captain.

The department now consists of a chief, captain and four patrolmen. On Feb. 13, the defendants asked for a certified list of eligible patrolmen to fill the vacancy and the names of Charles Amato and Leonard Hephner were certified but they didn't fill the vacancy. Then on April 1 the defendants again requested another civil service certification be made and they named Amato, Hephner and Gene Keith Hamilton, but still no appointment has been made.

The relator claims that a one-mill levy in excess of 10 - mill limitation has been passed and is being collected from the taxpayers of Wellsville but no appointment has been made, and he claims that mayor and service director are in violation of their duty, and for personal and partisan political reason failed to make an appointment to the force from the lists certified to them.

Hints from Heloise

— By Heloise Cruise —

Dear Heloise: Here is the answer to keeping a crease in little boys' trousers:

Press a good, sharp crease in the pants. Then sit down at the sewing machine and . . . using a matching thread, literally "sew" in the crease.

On heavy materials, such as corduroy—I sew about one-eighth inch from the edge of the crease. On lighter weight materials, I sew about one-sixteenth inch from the edge.

Whether the trousers belong to his best suit which gets dry-cleaned or . . . to washable trousers which get pressed or dried on a form, the crease is there to stay and is always sharp and neat.

I bought a pair of slacks that had this stitching and have used the idea ever since in my children's trousers.

DEAR HELOISE: Just a little hint for those who make pickle beets. Add three or four whole cloves to a quart jar of your beets and let them stand a day or two. Just taste the difference! Real tangy.

I used 6 cloves to one large can of beets and it was delicious. One-third each of vinegar, sugar and beet juice.

Your Telephone

puts you in Touch...

keeping in touch with each other...

There are more than 70 million telephones in service throughout the United States, all of which are within easy calling distance of your own telephone. Soon, you shall be able to dial most any one of these telephones direct from your telephone.

Calling areas in which local calls can be made without toll charges are constantly being extended. Where toll charges are still in effect, these messages are normally handled very quickly. The average toll call goes through in 96 seconds, the actual voice impulse traveling at the speed of light.

As we look toward the future we realize the need for more and faster methods of communication. As pioneers in this field, we accept the challenge of the era for adequate facilities for the transmission of knowledge and facts across the far flung reaches of America. Electronic communications, data transmission and remotely controlled computers are just a few of the developments of the telephone industry that are currently coming into use in this business of "keeping in touch" with each other.

OPENING sentence of "The Shoes of the Fisherman," latest novel by Morris L. West, begins: "The Pope was dead." This book anticipated the headlines that came a week later with the death of Pope John XXIII. West, whose home is in Sydney, Australia, was in New York recently for the publication of his book. Much of the background for his works grew from his assignment in 1958 to write a series of articles on the Vatican for the London Daily Mail. Ohio Amateur Whittled Down To 4 For Today's Card

2 Finalist Meet Sunday

Dan Carmichael W Carmichael Won Tournament In 1960

ELYRIA, Ohio (AP)—A quaint quartet, none new to golfdom's throne rooms, wheeled into today's 36-hole semifinal matches in the 57th Ohio Amateur championship at Elyria Country Club.

One survivor of the starting field of 233 is in his teens, one in his 20s, one in his 30s, and one in his 40s.

Scattered in their wake after Friday's two 18-hole rounds were such talented stars as defending champion Tony Blom Jr. of Cincinnati and medalist Jim Brown of Martins Ferry.

Today's program in which the two-man cast for Sunday's 36-hole championship round would be decided sent Dan Carmichael, 44, of Columbus against Carl Unis, 25, a Cleveland public links entrant, and Bob Bourne Jr., 19, of Oberlin against Paul Minnich, 31, of Elyria.

Carmichael, who had a 27-hole no-bogey string Friday until the 17th hole of his quarterfinals match is an architect, winner of the 1960 tilt, a jet pilot, sports car racing driver, and a naval air ace of World War II with 15 Jap planes to his credit.

Unis, a long hitter, won the district caddy title on this course eight years ago, but Carmichael's steady play was expected to turn him back and erase the last of the 24 public course contestants.

Bourne, a blond bomber from the tees and a precision putter, won the 1962 Mid-American Junior match play crown, and is a student at the University of Houston.

Minnich, who manufactures business forms, was on Notre Dame's varsity for two years and has held the host club championship four times.

Carmichael overcame a two-two-hole deficit Friday to defeat Blom 3 and 2 and came back with a 2-up win over Karl Schmidt of Akron. Schmidt, a retired Marine Colonel, holed birdie putts of 40, 23 and 35 feet, but Carmichael wound up with a two-under-par 70.

Unis eased by Cleveland's Bill Petersen 2 and 1, then had the same margin over Pandel Savic of Columbus.

Bourne triumphed 3 and 2 over Bob Hoag of Columbus, then birdied the last hole with a 20-foot putt to sideline medalist Brown, Ohio State cager and No. 1 golfer, 1 up.

Minnich won 3 and 2 over Vince Cirigliano, Cleveland oil salesman, then tossed a four-birdie barrage for a 1 up victory over Walter Stahl of Cleveland, the 1961 champion.

Phils Tumble Giants 7-5; Cards Triumph 5-3

Dodgers Blank Mets Behind Koufax' 3-Hitter; Cubs Dump Cincy; Bucs Roll

By JIM HACKLEMAN Associated Press Sports Writer

"I was scared to death I'd never pitch again."

That's Sandy Koufax, remembering how things were exactly a year ago.

The brilliant left-hander was in the middle of a spectacular season and the Los Angeles Dodgers were sailing ahead in the National League race on July 12, 1962 at the Polo Grounds in New York.

A numb index finger on his pitching hand forced Koufax to the sidelines after he had blanked the Mets through seven innings. He was credited with the victory—his 14th—but it was his last of the year. The circulatory ailment later idled him for over two months, and the Dodgers wound up losing the pennant to the San Francisco Giants.

But the frightened and disabled Koufax of a year ago is now the hottest pitcher in baseball—a fact he emphasized Friday night on the anniversary of that dark chapter in his career.

Again at the Polo Grounds and again facing the Mets, he fired a three-hit 6-0 triumph. The shut-out was his third in a row and ninth of the season; the victory his eighth straight and 15th of the year—high in the majors. His 163, tops in the big leagues, and he lowered his earned run average to 1.64 in his 13th complete game.

The Dodgers? They've won five in succession and have a five-game grip on first place.

The Philadelphia Phillies tumbled the second-place Giants another length behind, 7-5, despite the continued long-range hitting of Willie McCovey.

St. Louis beat Milwaukee 5-3; Chicago trimmed Cincinnati 4-1 and Pittsburgh shaded Houston 2-1.

The Phils rapped Jack Sanford for four runs in the first inning and three in the fifth, with doubles by Roy Sievers, Don Demeter and Clay Dalrymple the telling blows. McCovey smacked two-run homers for the Giant's in the third and eighth—his 25th and 26th— and Harvey Kuenn homered for San Francisco in the eighth. Winner Art Mahaffey was chased in the eighth, but Jack Baldschun checked the Giants the rest of the way.

The Cardinals clinched it with a four-run third inning, capped by Gary Kolb's first major league homer. Bob Gibson won his ninth, with relief from Barney Schultz, and Tony Cloninger was the loser. Gene Oliver and Mack Jones homered for Milwaukee.

The Cubs collected 13 hits in dealing southpaw Jim O'Toole his fourth straight loss. Ernie Banks had a homer in the Cub attack, the 351st of his career for a seventh-place tie with Ralph Kiner on the all-time National League list. Bob Buhl was the winning pitcher, beating the Reds for only the second time in his 11 NL seasons.

Pittsburgh overcame Houston with two runs in the sixth on Dick Schofield's homer and successive singles by Roberto Clemente, Bill Mazeroski and Willie Stargell. Don Schwall got the pitching victory and Bob Bruce was the loser.

Morenz, Russell Win At Sebring Outing

Mrs. Carl Morenz of Salem took top honors for visitors in the "Guest Golf Tournament" held at Sebring Country Club recently. Mrs. Bennett Hudson of Canfield had low net and Mrs. Howard Thomas of Warren trimmed the entire field.

Mrs. Jack Russell of Boardman tied for first in the members bracket. Mrs. Edward Patrick of Canfield carded the low net, and Mrs. Robert Klaas of Alliance clipped the entire field.

Bridge winners included Mrs. Guy Oliver of North Benton and Mrs. James Nelson of Canfield.

United Boosters Club Plans Special Meeting

A special meeting will be held by the United Boosters Club at the United Elementary School Auditorium to work on the campaign for the athletic field "new lights project" Monday at 8 p.m.

Members of the Lights Committee, Boosters Club and other civic organizations are urged to attend the session.

Plans are also underway for a "meet the coach night" to be scheduled during the month of August.

PARACHUTE JUMP HELD

During the recent parachute jump held by the Alliance Sky Divers Club, a total of 98 jumps, including 80 contest leaps were made with George Leohr of Akron taking top honors in the Class A division. Other winners included Byron Smith, Class B; and Lonnie Massey of Akron, Class C.

Berra's Homer Gives Yanks 4-3 Win

Yastrzemski Bats Boston Into 2nd Place In League

By BOB GREEN

Associated Press Sports Writer

The first time Ted Williams saw Carl Yastrzemski swing a bat, he made one of his rare predictions: "Don't let anyone change his swing and he'll be a great hitter."

No one has, and Yaz is beginning to make Boston's old batting master look like an oracle.

Yaz lashed an opposite field home run in the top of the 12th inning Friday night and powered the Red Sox past Minnesota 3-2 and into second place.

The Chicago White Sox, 7-6 losers to Detroit in 12 innings, slipped to third, a half game behind Boston and six behind the leading New York Yankees.

The Yanks, powered by Yogi Berra's three-run homer, solved old nemesis Ken McBride and the Los Angeles Angels 4-3. Baltimore beat Washington by the same score. Cleveland at Kansas City was rained out.

Yastrzemski, a left-handed hitter, lashed his eighth homer of the season over the left centerfield fence, a drive of about 420 feet that tagged Minnesota with its fifth straight loss.

Yastrzemski, 23, a student at Notre Dame in the off-season, is in his third season as Williams' successor in left field for Boston and is off to his finest year. He leads the league in hitting, .334, and doubles, 23, is second in hits, 104, has a very respectable 43 runs batted in and possesses one of the best arms in the league.

Berra's sixth inning homer off McBride brought the Yanks from behind, but they needed a ninth inning run to make it stand up when the Angels rallied on Charley Dees two-run double.

It was the Angels' 10th straight loss and the first time McBride had lost to the Yankees since Aug. 7, 1961.

Bill Freehan singled in Rocky Colavito with the Tigers' 12th inning run, singled in another run and had a solo homer.

John Orsino belted a two-run homer in the top of the ninth, driving in the tying and winning runs for Baltimore, which trailed 3-2 going into the inning. It was Baltimore's eighth straight triumph over Washington this season and the Orioles eighth victory in their last nine games.

Dairy Isle Romps As Merrill Hits For Cycle; Elks Triumph

Dan Merrill clouted a home run, triple, double and three singles to spark Class H loop leader Dairy Isle to a 37-4 victory over Merchants Vending in junior baseball action at Reilly Field Friday.

Ailes Insurance rallied for three runs in the bottom of the sixth to knock off the Jaycees 13-10 at Buckeye Field.

In Class F competition, Elks beat Electric Furnace 12-5 at Memorial South and Eljer clipped Shaffer Ford 10-4 at Memorial North.

The Eagles tumbled Hunt's Industrial Union 11-10, and at Centennial South Class G's league leader Petrucci's nipped UCT 3-2 at Memorial West.

VFW chalked up its winning marker in the bottom of the seventh to edge CIO 3816 7-6 at Centennial North in Class E action.

Wynn Tries For 300 Today Against A's

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Cleveland Indians and Early Wynn had their sights set again today on the 43-year-old right-hander's 300th victory.

Wynn was booked to start one game of the doubleheader against Kansas City. The clubs were rained out Friday night.

Possibly in the hard-luck Wynn's favor today was the return of Dick Howser to shortstop after recovering from a pulled hamstring muscle that idled him three weeks.

What's so important about Howser, batting only .230?

"He's a professional leadoff man," says Manager Birdie Tebbetts. "But he can be even better. Howser walked more than 100 times in his rookie year of 1961 and should do that without trouble."

Jack Kralick was after his ninth victory for the Indians in the other game. Moe Drabowsky and Diego Segui were the A's nominees.

Mrs. Greenwood Takes Salem Golf Club Event

Mrs. Joseph Greenwood took top honors in the weekly tournament held by the Salem Women's Golf Club Association.

Finishing second in the Class A division of the "throw out" event was Mrs. Carl Morenz. Mrs. Greenwood also had the low number of putts.

In Class B, Mrs. R. T. Holzbach was first and Mrs. L. P. Hoppes finished second. Mrs. William Stevenson carded the low number of putts.

Mrs. Richard Lawrence was first in the Class C bracket, and Mrs. Kenneth Pinderton and Mrs. Gus Schuster tied for second. Mrs. Joseph Merrick carded the low putts.

Mrs. Arthur Brian and Mrs. Bruce Carlton, who had the low number of putts tied for first in the nine-hole event.

3 Motorists Get Licenses Revoked

LISBON — Three Columbiana County motorists had their driver licenses suspended Friday by Common Pleas Judge Joel H. Sharp under the state's 12-point demerit system.

The defendants were: Margaret L. Hall, 39, 413 S. Lincoln Ave., Salem; Herbert Ray Unkefer, 25, Homeworth and Lewis Arthur Tassi, 24, Columbiana. Each had their licenses suspended after they accumulated 12 points over a two-year period.

Unkefer and Tassi were given permission by the court, however, to get restricted licenses so that they can drive to and from work only, but not for pleasure driving.

Col. Marcos Gandara, a junta member, said constitutional guarantees would be restored as soon as Communists and pro-Castro terrorists are contained. He said Communists "made dangerous infiltrations in high government posts and in government agencies."

ally by Brig. Gen. George M. Gelston, commander of the guard units.

Unarmed and leaving a detachment of his men behind, he slowly walked up the middle of the street toward the marchers a block and a half away. As he met the column of demonstrators, he held up both hands.

"The National Guard was brought here to protect all the people," he said. "If you violate the prohibition against demonstrations, you are demonstrating against the orders of the governor of the state."

Dropping to sitting positions in the middle of the street, the integrationists turned to song — "Black and Whites Together" and "We are Soldiers in the Army." Led by the Rev. Charles Bourne, they also prayed.

Gelston removed his shiny-colored cap until the end of the prayer.

He then requested that the marchers return to the church. They turned and headed back up the street.

A few hours earlier, while most of his men were still on the city's outskirts, Gelston intercepted about 40 demonstrators headed for a segregated drug store.

Gelston told the demonstrators to disperse. When they challenged his authority, he sent an aide to army headquarters for a copy of his orders from the governor.

They were brought after a brief wait, during which the demonstrators sat on the sidewalk and sang "We Shall Overcome."

Gelston read the orders and, at the request of a demonstrator, read the militia law, explaining it would remain in effect "until my governor orders it lifted."

Rail

J. Reynolds said that Wednesday the committee will begin preparing its report to the President. Reynolds said it is hoped that the job will be finished by Friday, three days in advance of Kennedy's deadline for the fact-finding job.

The administration has avoided giving any hint of what Kennedy's recommendations will be, but some sources have indicated the remedy will involve some form of arbitration.

If it is arbitration the onus for eliminating rail jobs thus would be taken off union leaders, who could place the responsibility on Congress. The unions have said repeatedly they oppose any form of compulsory arbitration.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president and a member of the committee, who earlier had made certain with Wirtz that individual numbers would be permitted to mediate on their own should the opportunity arise, had nothing to say on the issue Friday.

Stuart Saunders, board chairman of the Norfolk & Western Railway, said he would have nothing to say at this time on whether he would attempt any settlement on his own.

Purpose of the visit was to see concrete evidence of projects being done by Ohio clubs. Greenford Ruritan displayed the two pavilions, restrooms and stone pillars which they built in the park and for which they won the Community Service Award last year as the most outstanding club in Ohio in terms of community service.

The award was given for the following achievements: Building of the pavilion and recreations, sponsoring of Little League and Pony League baseball teams, church work, home safety and agricultural work, economic youth and opportunity work, citizenship award and giving of Bibles to high school seniors annually.

"There is no charge against Birns," he argued. "He is held only for investigation, and there is no such crime."

Sheriff's deputies scoured Geauga County Friday in an effort to locate the scene of the Gold slaying. Carrying search warrants, they visited the home of a cohort of Birns and said they found no important evidence. They also searched motels in the Bainbridge area.

A file cabinet taken from Birns' home was opened in the office of Cleveland Police Chief Richard Wagner. In it were two revolvers and papers detectives said were of a "business type, the kind you'd usually throw away."
